

22 Enticing Rooftop Bars Around NYC

Eat and drink while taking in incredible views and basking in the sun

by Eater Staff and Kayla Kumari Upadhyaya | Updated May 24, 2019, 10:23am EDT

Cantina Rooftop | Photo by Cantina Rooftop [Official]

While sidewalk cafes and restaurant gardens pop up as soon as the temperature rises, rooftop bars also signal the official start of warmer weather. Some of the sky-high patios on this list offer stunning views of Midtown Manhattan and Williamsburg, while others have a comfortable perch to enjoy a breeze and a drink under the sun.

For more al fresco eating and drinking, take advantage of Eater NY's guides to lovely outdoor restaurants and outdoor spots for sipping cocktails.

4. Cantina Rooftop

605 W 48th St
New York, NY

(212) 957-1800
Visit Website

Indulge in Mexican with a view at this Hell's Kitchen rooftop, which remains open year-round. The colorful patio offers margarita pitchers and casual food like tacos, enchiladas, and several guacamoles. Taco Tuesdays deliver deals on taco plates, and there's an unlimited drinks option at brunch that runs $25 for 90 minutes of boozing.

Cantina Rooftop | Cantina Rooftop [Official]